and 10th frames of each match in the baker trios format, earned his sixth career PBA Tour title and second in Jonesboro.

Hess notched his ninth career PBA50 Tour title and fourth of the 2024 season, tying John Janawicz for the most on the senior tour. He bowled the third, sixth and ninth frames.

Bowling the second, fifth and eighth frames, Clemmer captured the second title of her PWBA Tour career.

Ten Years Before...

Ray Orf Suffered The Same Consternation As Glenn Allison

by Dave Williams

The date was February 6, 1972. Ray Orf rolled an 890 series. He was bowling in an adult-child league at Western Bowl in St. Louis, with his 7 year old son, Rich. Ray left a 10 pin in the first frame and converted the spare. He then rolled 35 consecutive strikes.

I can still remember the headline in Bowling Magazine. I must have read that issue at least a hundred times. According to an article written by Kevin Hong in 2015 (Feb. 6, 1972: Ray Orf Bowls 890), Orf did not realize that he had eclipsed the previous all time 3 game set of 886, rolled by Allie Brandt from Lockport, N.Y., in 1939.

Ray was no slouch when it came to bowling. He won two national PBA titles — one in Dallas, Texas, and another in Tacoma, Washington. He finished second on four different occasions in the USBC Classic Team Event. In a city with the likes of Dick Weber, Don Carter, Nelson Burton Jr. and Ray Bluth, Orf was named Bowler of the Year five times.

The 890 series was something that he should have been proud of accomplishing, but over the years it caused him much heartache, lost sleep and emotional ups and downs, stated Hong in his article. Roger Tessman of the ABC (now USBC) flew in from Greendale, Wisconsin, and filed a report saying that the lane conditions did not meet the standards in place for sanctioned competition in 1972.

Orf pled his case in front of the ABC's High Score Committee during a meeting in Long Beach, Calif., but it was to no avail. He then sued the ABC and settled out of court for an unspecified amount. Due to the terms of his agreement, Orf was never allowed to discuss the case nor reveal the size of his settlement.

Remembering Allie Brandt

While I was working for AMF, some of the employees at the Westerville plant in Ohio asked if I would join their team and compete in the annual USBC national tournament. AMF paid for everything, so how could I say no? My first USBC event was in St. Louis, in 1978. Rich Croci, owner of Boulevard Bowl in Petaluma, Calif., paid for all my expenses that year and our team did quite well. I remember receiving a key chain for my all events total of 1,907.

But beginning in 1980, I was part of the AMF team from Westerville. We bowled together 6 times during the decade, first at Louisville, Ky., followed by

The Legendary Allie Brandt

Ray Orf in 2015

Memphis, Niagara Falls, Reno, Tulsa and Las Vegas. What's interesting is that we usually bowled on Easter weekend, and we were often paired with a group from Lockport, N.Y., including Allie Brandt. He was a feisty man that stood only 5 feet 5 inches tall. We all stayed up for hours listening to his tales about bowling.

Brandt passed away in 1982, but not before we had a few years together at the USBC tournaments. Brandt's 886 series (297-289-300) in 1939 was a public relations bonanza for bowling, according to a post from J.R. Schmidt at bowlinghistory.wordpress.com. In addition to his small stature, Brandt weighed only 125 pounds. His size made the point that you didn't have to be a muscle-bound giant to succeed on the lanes.

As the decades passed, Brandt's series of 886 was analogous in many respects to Babe Ruth's 60 home runs in baseball. Just like Ruth, you knew that if anyone ever beat Brandt's total, there would have to be an asterisk. It's interesting that while Ray Orf's score of 890 in 1972 (four pins better than Brandt) was denied, another famous bowler later that same year, John Wilcox Jr., rolled an 885 series (one pin less than Brandt), and that score was certified by USBC.

Ray Orf's 890 Series was with a Brunswick Black Beauty Bowling Ball!

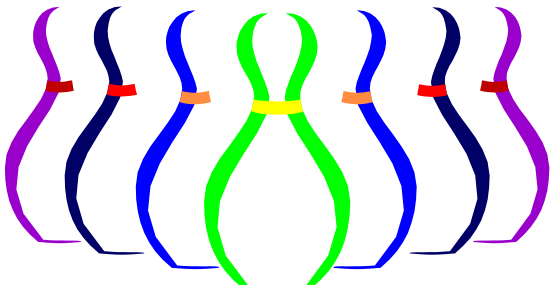

Just a few years after Brandt's death in 1982, Tom Jordan rolled an 899 series at Nationwide Bowling's Garden State Bowl in Union, New Jersey. That series (including a fourth game of 299) was approved by the USBC, almost 50 years after Brandt's score. Today, there are a total of 39 perfect three game sets, including Robert Mushtare of Fort Drum, N.Y., who has done it twice.

Without getting into too much detail, the first 900 that was sanctioned in the modern era was in 1997. There were a total of three 900's in the 1990's, followed by 12 in the 2000's, and 21 from 2010 to 2019. Since then, the number of perfect 900 series have dropped off dramatically, with one in 2021, and one in 2022 (bowl.com/records). What's the reason? Less league bowlers, I guess, but it is nonetheless interesting how the number has dropped so much in the past few years...

Trios teams were formed based on qualifying seed; the top qualifier in the PBA, PBA50 and PWBA divisions comprise Team 1, and so on. Lavoie, Hess and Clemmer each qualified in fourth.

Pinfall was dropped for 16 games of round-robin match play using the baker trios format.

All teams rotated their lineup for the first 15 games in the order of PBA50, PWBA and PBA. Each player bowled five games from each position.

Teams then set their own lineup for position round and stepladder finals games.

Is Chewing or Swallowing “Bubble Gum” DANGEROUS For Bowlers

by Frank Weiler

Every kid grows up loving to blow “Bubble Gum” bubbles. Kids love competing to see who can blow the largest bubbles. Kids chew gum when biking, swimming, BOWLING and more. When kids grow up they continue their chewing ways.

With so many bowlers chewing gum on the lanes two questions come to mind. Is it DANGEROUS to chew gum while bowling and second is it DANGEROUS to swallow gum while bowling or at any time?

Who can forget about that age-old warning that you might bite off your tongue while walking or running and chewing gum? What about biting off your tongue while on the bowling approach and swinging a fifteen pound bowling ball? What about choking on bubble gum while rolling a bowling ball? What about the warning that it takes seven years to digest swallowed gum? Can your gut handle the adverse affect that gum clinging to your intestinal walls might have on your health?

My tongue is the victim of many bites. Most of the time my tongue has been assaulted while chewing gum. Usually because I shifted the gum from the right side of my mouth to the left side too fast. Sometimes my biting occurs when I have too much gum in my mouth. Five sticks too much!

While I never bit my tongue while chewing gum and bowling I have seen it happen. It was a moment to remember when “BIG JOHN” yelled like a wounded banshee after biting his tongue while chewing DOUBLE BUBBLE brand and rolling a “Brooklyn Strike”. It was bloodcurdling!

What happened to “BIG JOHN” is rare and any otolaryngologist (ear, nose, and throat specialist) will tell you that it is impossible to bite off your tongue while chewing gum and bowling. While you may injure your tongue while chewing gum and bowling it would not be life threatening.

I have never heard of a bowler choking while chewing or swallowing gum on the lanes. I would never say never about the possibility, but I believe every otolaryngologist would agree that there is little chance of a choking fatality on the lanes as a result of chewing or swallowing gum. But never say never.

Other negative effects of chewing gum include gas, bloating, jaw pain, headaches and earaches. Chewing gum sometimes causes some individuals to swallow more air than usual which can cause gas and bloating. Chewing too much gum at once, chewing too fast or too hard can cause jaw problems leading to jaw pain, headaches and earaches.

Because chewing gum has no apparent serious medical side effects I conclude that it is not dangerous to bowl and chew gum.

What about swallowing gum while bowling, is it dangerous? While it’s not necessarily a health hazard for most people, swallowing gum is not a good habit according to most otolaryngologists. Swallowing a piece of gum occasionally should not be an issue if you have a normal GI Tract or have not experienced any intestinal blockage. Because gum doesn’t actually digest and has no nutritional value it eventually comes out in a bowel movement. Usually within a day or two.

Medical experts agree that swallowing gum will likely have minimal to no impact on the health of most people. However swallowing gum can be dangerous for some people.

“Double Bubble” chewing gum - The favorite of bowlers worldwide

If you have had GI surgery or experienced previous blockages it is best to avoid swallowing gum. Swallowing gum can be dangerous to someone who swallows large quantities on a regular basis. It can be dangerous if swallowed with other non food items that can be mixed together and create something that gets stuck in the intestinal tract.

Even if you don’t fall into one of the higher risk categories it is best not to make swallowing gum a habit according to most doctors. This recommendation would also hold true for swallowing gum while bowling. While swallowing gum may not be dangerous while bowling for most people, it is best not to do so according to most doctors.

There you have it. Bowlers without intestinal problems may gum it up to their delight.
