

Kelly Kulick at a Crossroads as Team USA Trials Title Defense Approaches

From Bowlers Journal International

Kelly Kulick finds herself at a crossroads as she looks toward bowling the tournament she crushed in record fashion a year ago.

Following a 2019 season that left her shaken by disappointing performances in PWBA Tour competition, the USBC Hall of Famer rebounded with a dominant showing in the 2020 Team USA Trials in January that was mind-blowing even for a bowler with a resume as incredible as hers.

With a player's finish on each of the week's five days of competition also functioning as the number of points earned per block, Kulick's finishes of first, first, seventh, first and third amounted to a mere 13 points for the week. That destroyed the previous women's record of 24, which Danielle McEwan set in the 2016 event.

But as Kulick explains on the latest episode of The Bowlers Journal Podcast, with the death of her mom Carol in 2016 still weighation when making plans to travel or bowl, Kulick is not sure what is ahead on her competitive horizon, including the 2021 Team USA Trials and beyond.

While the 2010 PBA Tournament of Champions winner contemplates her next move both on the lanes and in life, she is pursuing some of her many non-bowling passions. Did you know, for instance, that she is a good enough line dancer to be a line-dancing instructor? As the conversation you are about to hear demonstrates, Kulick remains one of the bowling industry's most fascinating and complicated figures.

Listen to that conversation here.

Christmas - A Time For Reflection

In December of 1965 The Byrds released their hit single Turn! Turn! Turn! to the delight of listeners throughout the world. It was an appropriate time of year for the release because the words, inspired by King Solomon from the book of Ecclesiastes in the Bible, personify the definitions of wisdom, knowledge and life.

The passages are also the most famous examples of opposites, providing phrases that are contrary in meaning to one another... a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; a

The United States Bowling Congress Board of Directors has voted to conduct the 2021 USBC Convention and Annual Meeting virtually due to COVID-19 public health concerns and frequently changing restrictions.

Both were scheduled to be held at the Westin Lombard Yorktown Center in Lombard, Illinois, from April 26-29, 2021.

An update with more details about the schedule, procedures and technology for the virtual convention will be announced by the end of January 2021.

A resolution also has been passed by the USBC Board of Directors to allow state and local USBC associations to hold their annual meetings virtually in 2021. USBC's Associations team already is working on guidelines and materials to help associations with the process.

"We know our delegates and supporters are beginning to consider travel and meeting arrangements, so we wanted to make and announce this decision as early as possible," USBC Executive Director Chad Murphy said. "Because there still is so much uncertainty, along with varying travel

His weekly bowling column appeared in bowling publications and newspapers for more than fifty years.

Before I ever met Mr. Pezzano, he had acknowledged my bowling performances in his column that appeared in The Sporting News. The Education of A Professional Bowler – Part 4

by Frank Weiler

Recently I received a bowling instructional pamphlet from a dear friend and member of the California Bowling Hall of Fame. The pamphlet was written by a PBA Champion from the past. While the pamphlet was written nearly fifty years ago there are pearls of wisdom worth sharing with today's bowlers. I will do that in a series of short articles.

This time I will share what our champion felt was the fifth of the "SIX KEYS" to successful bowling. I will also express my own ideas regarding the subject:

MAXIMIZE YOUR NATURAL ABILITY PHYSICAL CONDITIONING KNOWING YOUR GAME KNOWLEDGE OF THE SPORT OF BOWLING CONFIDENCE MENTAL ATTITUDE

"TO BOWL YOUR BEST, YOU MUST BE CONFIDENT"

To bowl your best, you must be:

CONFIDENT in your bowling skills, skills developed by maximizing your natural PHYSICAL ABILITIES. CONFIDENT that your PHYSICAL CONDITIONING makes you the superior bowler in any situation. CONFIDENT that you KNOW YOUR BOWLING GAME well enough to make any adjustments necessary to overcome any lane condition.

CONFIDENT that you KNOW every aspect of the sport of BOWLING that affects your ability to bowl well. CONFIDENT in your ability to perform under pressure and win.

CONFIDENT that your winning MENTAL ATTITUDE will prevail under any and all circumstances.

There are five keys to being CONFIDENT. CONFIDENCE is the product of practice and maximizing your natural abilities, maximizing your physical conditioning, maximizing your knowledge of your game and maximizing your knowledge of the sport of bowling.

Just as practice makes perfect, practice nurtures CONFIDENCE. Practice helps a bowler develop their skills. The success experienced during practice as a result of those perfected bowling skills breeds CONFIDENCE.

I call it the "CIRCLE OF SUCCESS": Practice equals (=) improved bowling skills, equals (=) higher scores, equals (=) more winning, equals (=) greater CONFIDENCE.

Practice is also instrumental in improving and maximizing our natural physical abilities. Practice does so by improving our flexibility, our strength and our endurance. When we improve our natural physical abilities, we enhance our CONFIDENCE.

Practice is also instrumental in improving and maximizing our physical conditioning. Practice does so by burning calories and helping you lose weight. Improved physical conditioning means better bowling because of improved accuracy, consistency and When we improve our physical conditioning, we enhance our CONFIDENCE.

Practice is also instrumental in improving and maximizing our knowledge of our own bowling game. Practice does so as a result of repetition. The more we practice and repeat our approach, our release and other aspects of our form the more familiar and knowledgeable we become with our own bowling game. When we improve our knowledge of our own bowling game, we enhance our CONFIDENCE.

Practice is also instrumental in improving our knowledge of the sport of bowling. Practice improves our knowledge of the sport of bowling by increasing our knowledge of the best bowling techniques. When we improve our knowledge of the sport of bowling, we enhance our CONFIDENCE.

While CONFIDENCE grows as we maximize our natural abilities, maximize our physical conditioning, maximize our knowledge of our own bowling game and maximize our knowledge of the sport of bowling there are a few other factors that also foster its growth.

CONFIDENCE is a mental attitude which is nurtured by repetition. Repetition and perfection of the skills that will be used during competition. Repeating and successfully performing specific skills and shots in practice will give a bowler the CONFIDENCE they need to successfully repeat those skills and make those shots when competing. When the pressure is on.

You can be confident in striking or making a critical 10 pin when you have done so a thousand times before in practice. Repetition will make you confident in the clutch.

CONFIDENCE is a mental attitude born from an intense desire to win. Wanting something hard enough makes you concentrate and work harder to achieve it. Desire and focus grow CONFIDENCE.

What about cockiness? Are you confident or are you COCKY? CONFIDENCE means you are sure of your ability to perform and win based on the hours of preparation and practice you have invested in the development of your bowling skills

COCKY means you are overconfident. You are overconfident because your feeling is based on bravado and not preparation and practice. Cockiness is a false confidence because it is not based on preparation and practice or any-thing substantive. Cockiness is brash and at times disgusting. It makes others uncomfortable and sheds negative light on you as a bowler and the sport of Bowling Cockiness is reckless because it isn't based on readiness or preparation but instead on exaggerated abilities.

Don't be stupid, "Don't be cocky". It may cost you a frame, a game, a match or even a championship. Even if cocki-

What about nervousness? If you're nervous does it mean you're not confident? No. You can be nervous and still be confident. It is natural to be nervous when you're under pressure to perform. While nervousness is a product of circumstances, CONFIDENCE is a product of preparation, practice and previous results. Don't let nervousness shake your CONFIDENCE.

Real CONFIDENCE is a good thing. No bowler can perform well if he or she isn't confident in their ability to do so.

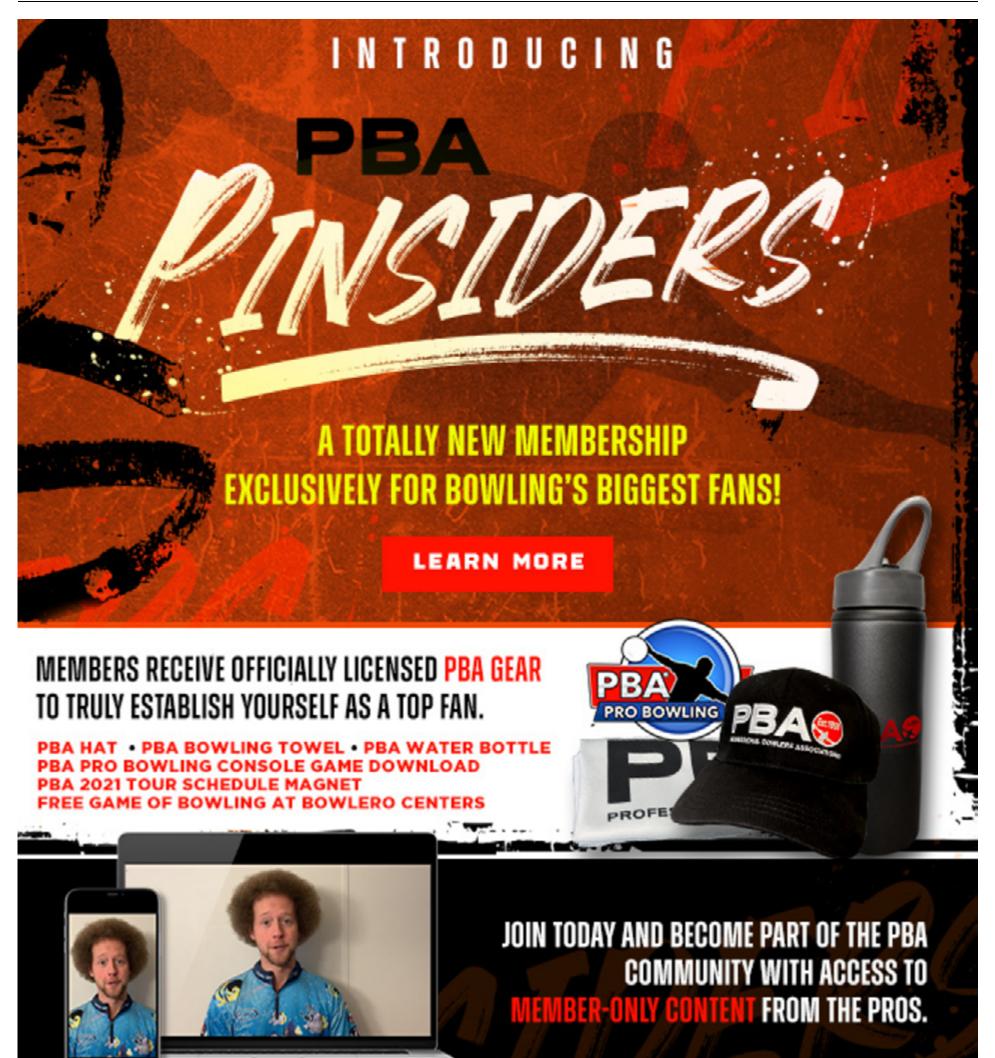

Cockiness is a bad thing. It is baseless and will eventually lead to mistakes and poor performance. This is because cockiness is prone to lapses in concentration, mistakes in judgment and frustration when things go wrong.

While the "Circle of Success" will build CONFIDENCE there is one more thing you can do to enhance your CONFI-DENCE. That would be employing a bowling coach. The knowledge obtained from a bowling coach will improve your skills and hence build CONFIDENCE.

In the Southern California area, I recommend MARK BAKER for instruction. He is a former PBA star and champion who currently is a TEAM USA coach. We are very lucky in this area to have access to a coach from our National Team. I suggest all bowlers serious about improving their game to contact coach MARK BAKER and learn from the best. When you work with Mark you will improve your bowling skills and enhance your CONFIDENCE.

Okay. Get off the couch and start building your CONFIDENCE. Keep reading the BOWLING NEWS and watch for my next installment of "The Education of A Professional Bowler". I promise you will receive great advice. Great advice for aspiring bowlers, professional or otherwise. Stay tuned because in my final installment you will learn the "TOP SECRET" to bowling your best.

Jason Belmonte's 225.31 Average Leads PBA Tour In 2020 by Lucas Wiseman

After a strong season in which he finished inside the Top 10 in all but two events, it should come as no surprise that Jason Belmonte led the PBA Tour average list for 2020.

Drive Underway To Help Save California Bowling Centers

California – The Southern California Junior Bowling Foundation was founded with the goal of growing and supporting youth bowling in Southern California. The group has found a new emergency goal- trying to raise funds to help bowling centers reopen in California.

including Bowlers, many prominent nationally recognized youth bowlers, have been unable to participate in the game they love due to the overbearing restrictions placed on bowling centers by the State of California. While other businesses have been permitted to open, bowling proprietors have seen their doors closed and lights off since mid-March. The frustration was escalated when bowling centers in 49 of 50 states were permitted to open while Californians lanes sat dormant in the dark.

Bowling is a big part of many people's daily lives. Seniors are suffering from missing their weekly exercise and social activity. Many junior bowlers are missing their opportunity to earn college scholarships due to their inability to practice. The SCJBF has recognized that it has become essential to help open bowling centers immediately.

The SCJBF has started a Go Fund Me campaign to help raise money for the fight to open bowling centers in California. At a time when many proprietors are struggling and centers are on the brink of closing forever, you can help with the fight.

We would appreciate any donation big or small to help with the cause. Log on to www.gofundme.com/ helpbowling and help today!

knew about Pezzano's column in the famous sports newspaper.

One day a friend of mine said that I was featured in an article that appeared in The Sporting News! I hurried to the drug store and when I spotted the feature, I snatched up the last three copies on the shelf for 75 cents each. Proof of Pezzano's command of the English language was confirmed with a couple of quotes that were reminiscent of King Solomon:

- "At 24, Williams has done more in bowling than most pros will accomplish in a lifetime, vet he hasn't caused the slightest ripple in his first attempts at pro bowling."
- "Scoring in bowling can be a relative thing, based heavily on lane conditions, but if you rolled on a no-tilt pinball machine, you couldn't rack up that kind of record."
- "His impressive record will be told over and over again, if he makes it. If he doesn't, few will recall him, and fewer will remember his 300 and 800 sprees that deserve a spot in bowling history."

When I finally met Chuck in 1982, following AMF's decision to move me to the corporate offices in Westbury, New York, we became fast friends and would talk for hours about the history of bowling. I especially liked to pick his brain about the team era of bowling which made stars out of Dick Weber, Don Carter and dozens of others.

Pezzano was a graduate of Rutgers University, where he was the first collegiate bowler to roll a three game series of over 800. While I never asked him, one can only assume that Chuck majored in English Literature, or perhaps Physical Education. His command of the English language was very apparent in all of his columns, and many books about bowling that he authored.

Mr. Pezzano and Frank Esposito, a New Jersey entrepreneur that owned the famous Paramus Bowl, were responsible for the creation of the Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) Regional Bowling Program. Chuck served for many years as the director of the PBA Eastern Region, and Secretary of the national organization. Although he never retired from the PBA, in later years he held the title of PBA Historian.

Another unique feature of Chuck's personality was his ability to make you feel as though you were the most important person in the room when you were with him. I'm sure that this distinguishing quality came from the fact that Pezzano had four sons that must have all been requiring his attention when they were young.

But He's Still Obscure bowling Rookie Has Dazzling Credentials By CHUCK PEZZANO

NEW YORK-Pro bowling rookies usually make their big splash on the summer tour, for a number of reasons

Like rookies in other sports, the newcomers must prove themselves to fellow players, fans, sponsors and themselves. Unlike rookies in other sports, they get no bonus money, no fat no-cut con-tracts and little publicity.

In fact, one reason they shine in the summer is that's when they get a chance to play regularly. Fields are filled on a basis of membership the slightest ripple in his first at-tempts at pro bowling. One good reason could be that he hasn't had much opportunity

IN FOUR EVENTS on the na-tional tour, he picked up $390. Williams also picked up $90 in a regional tourney. In 78 games, he posted an average of a little better than 196. All in all, that's about what you could expect from a rookie.

But Dave Williams is far from your average pro rookie. Rarely does any bowler come in stamped as a natural, a future super star, a sure thing, but no bowler ever has had better credentials than young Williams.

You have to bowl three great games in a row.'

Concentration is the key to success, according to Williams. "The physical aspects of bowling are relatively minor in comparison to the importance of your mental attitude. The greatest asset I have is a very strong mental image of myself and everything around me.'

Williams does notice everything. around him because aside from bowling, that's his thing. He's a grad student at San Francisco State and geography is his subject. That's another reason he'd like to make it as a bowling pro.

But pro bowling is a different world, with different yardsticks, voice and severe critics.

Williams feels he's ready, and so do many others.

Pin Patter: The pro summer tour will feature 13 stops, almost $1 million in prize money and television coverage of every event. CBS will telecast three of the events and Home Box Office TV will cover the remainder. . . . The most talked about amendment adopted at the annual convention of the Ameri can Bowling Congress concerns lane conditioning. Due to go into effect on August 1, it mandates a procedure some bowling proprietors have openly protested. Talk about attendance figures usually skips bowling. Every time a bowler shows up for league play, he or she pays an admission charge in the form of the cost of games rolled, and they pay whether they show or not. That happens 300 million times a year for league competition. . . . Though pro tour-naments take the spotlight, there are more than 10,000 bowling tournaments staged in the world each year. . . . The Bowling and Billiard Institute of America will honor Joe Wilson as man of the year. If the name doesn't ring a bell you might recall him as Whispering Joe Wilson, a Chicago-based TV announcer who did all sports but was heavy on bowling and billiards. He spoke softly so he wouldn't disturb the participants and that became his trademark. He's one of the few men who could create tension and excitement without raising his Eddie Elias comments, "Billy Hardwick won the first Firestone because he wasn't awed by Dick Weber, and Marshall Holman won this year because he wasn't awed by Billy Hardwick." Close observers might agree. They also agree that what seems to awe Marshall Holman is Marshall Holman.

standing. A rookie or apprentice pro is low man on the totem pole. With the popularity of the tour and the increasing money on the winter tour, plus the added glamor of national television, the rookies have a tough time in the winter.

THE SUMMER tour is crowded, too, but many of the touring pros need some time off, and most take it in the summer, leaving more spots for the aspiring pros.

But getting a spot is only the beginning. Rookies must work their way into the life and into acceptance. If they roll too slow or do things a little differently, talk too loud or not at all, their actions or lack of them are magnified.

Consequently, most rookies live in their own little world until they make friends or make a splash with their bowling. So it is that a rookie often can be around for a long time with little known about his background. Dave Williams of Sebastopol, Calif., is a perfect example.

At 24, he has done more in bowling than most pros will accomplish in a lifetime, yet he hasn't caused

In November of 1972, Williams rolled his first 300. His next came in 1974. In a period of eight months during 1975, he struck six perfect games. In March this year, he came up with the ninth 300 of his career. He has also rolled four three-game sets of 800 or better since July of 1974, the highest an 824 on games of 279, 266 and 279.

Scoring in bowling can be a relative thing, based heavily on lane conditions, but if you rolled on a no-tilt pinball machine, you couldn't rack up that kind of record.

WILLIAMS HAS tossed his big stuff all around California, not at one particular center. Add to that a 230 league average for 75 games and you can see he gets more than his share of strikes.

He is most proud of the 800s. "They're really hard to get," he said. "A 300 game can be lucky or it can be a great achievement. When you bowl 800, it isn't luck.

Traveling to the various tourney sites would give him an opportunity to study land formations and other points of geographical interest throughout the country.

A BOWLER SINCE he was eight years old, Williams meditates, shoots baskets to relax, lifts weights and tries to run a mile a day, not exactly the regimen of your average bowling pro. He takes his bowling seriously.

He knows the pro tour is tough, not only to get a start, but to keep going. He doesn't talk much because he's on the quiet and reserved side, but that doesn't mean he doesn't have strong opinions. "I wouldn't attempt it if I didn't think I could do it," said Dave.

There is no doubt Williams comes to the tour with a most impressive bowling record, and with a unique personal background. It will all be told over and over again, if he makes it. If he doesn't, few will recall him, and fewer will remember his 300 and 800 sprees that deserve a spot in bowling history.

In the history of the PBA Tour, there have been 359 players who have won at least one title in their career. None of them has been as successful as Walter Ray Williams Jr., however. Williams sits atop the all-time titles list with 47 career victories, the last of which came on Feb. 14, 2010, at the United States Bowling Congress Masters. Left-hander Earl Anthony ranks second on the list with 43 titles. The late legend won his final title on May 12, 1984, also at the USBC Masters.
